2. ■ Head-to-Head Proof: 60-Day Fixed Cap vs Dynamic Trend-Holding

Comparison showing why capping trades at Day 60 leaves astronomical gains on the table: Top multibaggers like Cummins India (+855%), CDSL (+471%), Dixon (+407%), and HAL (+402%) were only up +25% to +45% at Day 60, but multiplied into 5x to 10x monster runners when held through their entire growth cycle.

4. ■■ Holding Duration Asymmetry: Proof of 'Cut Losers, Ride Winners'

The empirical key to the Blumberg model's profitability lies in the extreme time-in-trade asymmetry: Losing trades are ruthlessly pruned in an average of 15 to 23 sessions via the strict -8.0% stop loss, while massive 3x+ multibaggers are nurtured for an average of 422 sessions (1.7 years).

Outcome Bracket	Trade Count	Mean Days Held	Median Days Held	Avg Realized Return	Capital Protection / Edge Mechanism
Hard Stop Loss Exits (-8%)	833	15.2 days	10.0 days	-8.1%	Fast loss cutting; immediate exit on breakout failure
Breakeven Stops (+0%)	158	55.8 days	38.0 days	-0.1%	Risk eliminated; stop raised after +15% ignition
Stagnation Timeouts (30d)	381	30.0 days	30.0 days	+0.8%	Sideways drift pruned to liberate capital for active leaders
Modest Wins (0% to +20%)	353	52.7 days	30.0 days	+6.4%	Standard rotational swing capture
Solid Wins (+20% to +50%)	130	139.1 days	118.0 days	+32.2%	14% trailing stop locks in intermediate expansion
2x Multibaggers (+100% to +200%)	29	363.5 days	421.0 days	+142.1%	20% trailing buffer allows navigating intermediate corrections
3x+ Monster Multibaggers (≥ +200%)	13	421.8 days	335.0 days	+378.1%	Multi-year compounding across capex & policy waves

Quantitative Audit Conclusion: Removing the arbitrary 60-day cap and letting winners run with dynamic trailing stops transforms the Blumberg Market Radar from a short-term swing screener into an institutional-grade multibagger compounding engine. With a 5.23 : 1 Payoff Ratio and an aggregate Profit Factor of 2.54 across 11.8 years, the empirical data demonstrates robust mathematical expectancy across every single market cycle from 2015 to 2026.
